Chicago Grain and Produce

CHICAGO, March 27,-On the whole there was a very excellent day for trading on The markets opened with fractionally higher prices for all leading articles on the floor. Buying was of a vigorous character, and very material advances were made during the first hour in the grain pits. Before noon reactions followed, and at midday prices were at very near the closing prices of last night, but the reaction was followed by another advance and closing prices were bout the best of the day. Traders in wheat kept little account of patside information. They were busy watching each other. There was a good active market, but it was purely Chicago market and the pit made its own prices. May opened c better at 77 c, and on good stiff buying | P mivanced to 77%c, then receded to 76%c, where it rested about noon. Toward the ose, the market again firmed up rapidly and May rested at 77%c.

Corn showed unmistakable signs of firmness on the curb this morning, after the le advance vesterday afternoon. The arguments appeared to be on the side of the bulls early. . Some outside orders came in Very few cars of No. 2 corn were received and the general eagerness to purchase gave a sharp up turn to the market during the first bour. The trading was brisk and in large lots from 50c, the pening price for May up to 52%c, the top for the session. After the turn the price ragged down to 52c, but once below that point sellers became excited and prices went quickly down to 51%c. There was a rally before the close and the closing price n as 52% or 52% c. Oats showed a substantial improvement today, there being a brisk demand both from shorts and other buyers. May opened c higher at 31 4c, sold up to 31 4c, reacted to 39% c and closed at 31%c.

interest was manifested in provisions today. Shorts in pork evinced more desire to cover than to sell more. The big bears were also conspicuous for their absence. Prices adanced 15c but receded 5c and the market was stendy at a net advance of 10c over yesterday's close. Sales ranged at $13.5% ($13.47); and closed at $13.60. business transpired in lard, the feature being on call, where one operator sold 18,-000 tieroes year lard at $7,225 @$7.25. setter demand existed for cash lard and transactions showed a good increase. August sold at $7.70 and January at $7.30. The leading futures were as follows:

YANKEE EDITOR IN PARIS.

DRAWBACKS TO RUNNING A NEWS-PAPER IN THE FRENCH REPUBLIC.

Experiences in Editing The News-P liar Difficulties of Bill Posting-The Law of Libel in France-Difficulties o Interviewing-A Long Law Suit.

Before the debut of the new paper an unexpected hitch occurred. The forthcoming journal must have a gerant. A gerant is defined by Spiers and Surenne as "a manager, a person at the head of an establishment. 5 I found that the French law forbade my contemplating myself or permitting myself to be publicly contemplated as a gerant. foreigner whatsoever may lay that flattering unction to his soul. The gerant must be a French person, actually of native birth, or arointed with the divine unguent of naturalization. Accordingly, I had to hunt up a properly qualified germat. After some search I learned of a worthy individual named Malabouche, who fulfilled all legal requirements. Malabouche was a gentleman o humble station, who dwelt somewhere in the suburbs. He was described to me as being a hopeless cripple from paralysis, who, for the stipend of $20 monthly, would act as figurehead for any aspiring editor of foreign traction. His responsibility comprised the shouldering of legal actions, appearance in cases of libel, infringement of the press laws and so forth. M. Malabouche was engaged forthwith. Whether or not be justified the description I had of him I am unable to say. I never set eyes upon the good man, and for aught I know he may have been a journalistic Mrs. Harris with a gift of regularly drawing $20 a month and receipting therefor in a Frenchy chirography.

STRUCK ANOTHER SNAG. Before the first issue we (I use the plural as referring not to Malabouche, but to my able associate, Mr. Albert C. Ives, formerly of The New York Times) struck another snag. To properly berald the coming birth, a quantity of posters had been prepared for placarding the vacant walls of Paris It was our uptutored American idea that to order and pay for a few thousand flaming bills, and to hire nen to stick them to the walls, comprised all the process necessary for this pleasing form of attracting public attention. Ingenious borbarians that we were, we had fallen into new errors. First, we narrowly escaped arrest for affixing one of the phecards to our own premises without previously having it stamped with the official stamp. must, under penalty of the law, bear the govermment stamp as consistencedy as though it were going to be sent by mail. The stamps vary in price according to the size of the powier, but the rule is rigid and the pennity for its infringement sovers. Further than this, a good part of our stock of placards were seized because, for sooth, the announcements had been printed upon white paper! The use of white paper is reserved by the French republic to itself for such proclamations or other announcements as it finds necessary to pineard about the capital. Red we could use, blue or pengreen or any shade of color whatsoever that might please our asthetic fancy, but the posters which we had presumed to order printed in black and white must be destroyed, and destroyed they were,

When the paper had been running about we menths we made the announcement, based on a careful canvass of the kiosis, or news stands, that our circulation in the city of Parls was six times as large as that of our venerable rival. The said rival had meantime reduced its price from eight to four cents a opy, applied for a special wire to London, and actually taken to printing sporadic items of news. Our statement of comparative circulation was printed in tabular form, based upon the actual sales of the kiosks. The figures were carefully verified before publica-tion. They showed conclusively that the Parissale of The Morning News versus that of Gaglignani was six against one. But though this statement was true, it was, according to French law, illegal. We were promptly sued by the enemy, who estimated his damages at 20,000 francs ($4,000). A LONG LAW SUIT. The law under which our behavior had become actionable was that of concurrence de-G. W. Bird.

It did not appear to be at all a question of fact as based upon the be at all a question of fact as based upon the evidence. The undisputed testimony as to the occurrence of an interview did not apparently come within the purview of the court. It was simply assumed to be the right of M.
